BOLD ROBBERY.

The Safe of the Cochise Hardware Company Robbed.

One of the Boldest Robberies Known in the History of Tombstone—No Clue to the Cracksmen.

Some time during last night the Tombstone Hardware Company's store, situated on the corner of Fourth and Allen streets, was entered by burglars, who after ransacking the store and taking number of number of pocket books turned their attention to the safe, which is in the back portion of the store. Whether they were, they were prudent in their business, for their arrangements could not have been better made. They had procured a number of sacks and a horse-blanket and sewed them together and placed them in the form of a tent from the soft arms to the ceiling which encloses the safe and desk. Under the cover of this they worked, nobody knowing how long, with only a couple of tin cans glued together with oil and stuck to them for a light. Before commencing operations they had knocked off a couple of boards of the railing around the safe and driven two long spikes into the floor of the outside, over them placed the end of a 2x3 railing against them and run it through the opening made by knocking off the boards, holding it on an incline for the end of their brace to rest against. With this brace they drilled a hole through the safe just under and to the left of the combination knob. After they had succeeded in drilling the hole through the door of the safe, they used a long piece of wire with a hook on one end and raised the tumblers of the combination lock, turned the knob and the door of the safe was opened. They then took out the iron cash box and departed, leaving their tools, lantern and working tongs around on the floor. Their haul was not a heavy one, as Mr. Earl never had much confidence in the safe, and whenever he has a large amount of money on hand he deposits in the safe of L. W. Blair. As near as can be ascertained the burglar's getaway with about one hundred and fifty dollars in money and three or four thousand dollars worth of county warrants, thereby receiving very little for their trouble, as the warrants are of small value to them, no payment will be stopped upon them at once.

NOW THEY EXPLAIN.

There is a door at the back end of the building on the left hand side as you enter the store from the front, which opens out into an alleyway back of the Fashion saloon and Pacific chop house and then leads out into the vacant lot between the hardware store and the Fourth street entrance of the Fashion stables. This door is fastened with a common mortised lock, and the door was easily pried open with a jimmy that the burglars had in their possession. Upon entering this morning Mr. Ives found the tools that they had used scattered around on the floor near the safe. They consisted of a long piece of wire with a hook on the end, two bits, a jimmy, a large striking hammer with the handle cut off short and the lantern above mentioned. The drill that they bored the hole through the safe with was not found.

Large numbers of our citizens went into the store this morning after the robbery because known and examined the cracksmen's handiwork and pronounced it a fine piece of work. The burglars must have worked very quietly, as the night watchman passed there on his beat several times during the night and heard no sound. The sucking was taken from the oil room in the store and was sewed together in the store before operations were commenced. The lantern was stored from the Fashion stables.

Among other articles stolen from the safe last night was a bag of rare coins belonging to Frank Earl. The value of the coins, if sold, was about $200, but money could not have bought them from him, as the collection is the work of years, he having commenced to gather them when he was a child.

While hunting for money the burglars failed to notice a tin box on top of the safe which contained some money belonging to the Episcopal church. Chief of Police Geyl set to work immediately, upon being notified of the robbery, to ferret out, if possible, the perpetrators and thinks he will be successful. Suspicion points to two individuals who will be shadowed until some direct evidence against them can be had. In the meantime, the sheriff and the police will use every endeavor to jail the robbers. All business men who have safes in their places of business when they heard of the robbery this morning examined their safes at once. The screw-driver found this morning is thought to have been stolen from the sulphur mine.

Grand Surprise.

In response to invocations that has been issued by members of Tombstone Lodge, No. 3, A. O. U. W., to the friends of the order, a large number of ladies and gentlemen assembled in the lodge room last evening to take part in the annual gathering. The exercises consisted of music, singing and a brief history of the order. Master Workman G. W. Swain announced the programme, which was as follows: Singing, M. W. O. O., a verse of welcome, G. W. Swain; recited history of Tombstone Lodge, G. D. Mummert; songs, Sweet and Low; music on the violin, Maggie and Ned was followed song, "Only a Vision," by B. A. Pickard; song, "Dust Stay Late to-night," quartette singing solo, "Where Is My Boy To-night?" Mrs. Green; history of the order, R. W. Voss; singing, "Hark Say You Will Not;" M. B. A. Foy; song, "Good Night," Mrs. Atkin, Mrs. Green; a verse of welcome and Meads, H. Lee and Smith, who was exceeding well received in every particular. Miss Hayes presided at the organ during the evening, and lent her aid in every way toward making the social the success it was. The lodge now has a membership of 81 members and is in a very flourishing condition, no assessments being required for seven months past.

In a Dead Dog's Jaws.

[London Free Press.]
A peculiar accident happened at Marquette on Monday. Some one administered a dose of poison to a dog belonging to Mr. Macartney, a tailor. Macartney's daughter, Mrs. Agar, picked the dog up while it was in convulsions and attempted to give it an emetic, with the result that the dog bit her thumb clean through, and, dying immediately, her thumb remained fast in the dead dog's jaws. An iron poker had to be used to pry the jaws apart before the thumb could be released. Naturally Mrs. Agar was much alarmed and hastened to a doctor, who treated the wound with caustic.
